Reports Better.

NEW YORK, June 27 .- At the close of business today the stock market was not much changed from the same time one week ago. Last Monday there was quite a slump in prices, which for the most part was quickly recovered, and since then business has been dull, prices fairly firm, but somewhat irregular, and the tone of the market generally hopeful. For persons who bought on the decline in the early part of the week, and who were then carrying long stock, the market has been of the irritating sort, where the holder does not know which way the cat may jump.

To those who joined the bear crowd last Monday and Tuesday, expecting that the market was playing to a fall, the week has been one of considerable disappointment and anxiety. To the quiet observer, with no commitments, it has appeared that the situation was a waiting one, in which the market is be ing manipulated by the professional traders for some purpose not yet made

Most persons will agree with the view that the market is hung up, awaiting the result of the nominations and platform at Denver, which, if about as ex-pected, will probably be the signal for slow and limited upward movement. That such a movement is likely may be inferred from the fact that the speculative community is in a mood to welcome Money is more plentiful than at any time before in a generation, and even the best informed students of finance can give no satisfactory reasons why stocks should not sell on a level of 10 or 15 points higher than they now are.

Many Fractional Losses.

If one should go painfully over the list, comparing prices today with those of one week ago he would find fractional losses on a good many stocks. The reason is that the better part of the list, numerically speaking, has not been active to any degree for a week. Even with the onslaught made upon Rock Island, and the activity displayed by the Pacific railroads, the Coppers and some of the industrials, the range of the market for the week has been within 6 points, with prices tonight close to ere they were a week ago.

Many of the stocks do not show net changes of more than 1/2 of a point, and it is only the exception where the record is more than $1 a share. During the en tire week trading was strictly of a pro fessional kind and represented mostly operations by the bears to get some holon which to unsettle prices. This they have signally failed to do, their bes efforts being met, as was the case with Rock Island, by support that completely disarmed them and sent them, scared to the tall timber.

Some of the trading, especially of the last two days, has been the selling out of long stock to even accounts, and at times there has been seen a moderate amount of short covering. The extent of the short interest is a sealed book, so far as the best informed brokers are Many are of the that by far the larger part of the operations of the week were for short count, but such does not seem to be the case, and probably the best judgment is that the shorts are comparatively few in number and that their accounts are correspondingly small.

Cash Piles Up in Banks.

One of the interesting features of the situation is the large amount of money accumulating here in New York and at other centers. The bank statement yesterday showed another large tion of cash in the financial institutions, and speculators are perfectly aware that so far as the means for an active period are concerned they never were better. And yet while stocks are confessedly low, from the speculative standpoint, there seems to be a fear of launching out and buying stocks, except by the few who are taking them up as investments, most of the railrowls being at 6 per cent prices.

bonds. The figures today cobering the transactions for the week show the sale of more than $9,000,000 in bonds and about 1,500,000 shares of stocks. The large buying of bonds can mean only one thing, that some of the accumulating cash of the country is seeking investment in the bonds of railroads and the better paying corporations. The same fact accounts in a measure for the piling up of money here in New York, millions of dollars coming from other parts of the country to pay for the bonds bought, many of them in small amounts by investors. The move ment is sufficiently marked to attract much attention, and one of the things most often commented upon here is the continued call from all quarters for bonds, and still more bonds.

Dividend Showing Good.

Much of the altention of Wall Street has been taken up during the week in reading over and digesting the reports of railroads and various large corporations who have dividends due this week, and are making up their midyear statements. These statements in the main are a little better than expected. More concerns are paying dividends, and in many instances the dividends are larger than was predicted a month ago. In some instances probably it has taken close financiering to make a good showing, but it has been done, and the temper of Wall Street is better on that account.

These reports show that the business depression of the early part of the year was not so serious as expected, and that the resumption has been greater than daily and ephemeral reports would lead one to suppose. The report of the Virginia and Carolina Chemical Com- Record.

pany was a case in point. It had been predicted that the July dividend would be passed, rumors to that effect having been freely circulated, but when the report was made public it was found that the earnings of the company had been such as to allay all fear on the score of dividends. It was a genuine shock of surprise to Wall Street to find hat it had been napping.

It is probable that the market will remain dull and inactive during the coming week. At present all signs point in that direction. Limited business professional trading, and manipulation to hold prices about as they are seems to be the game the controlling element in the situation is playing, and until it ecomes fully apparent who will be the nominees and what will be the platorm of the Denver convention, little change need be expected in the specula tive situation.

WASHINGTON STOCKS DULL DURING WEEK

Lack of Buying Power Re sponsible for Inactive Market.

The Washington stock market dur ing the week has been so near a standstill that it is difficult to fashion a line of comment that will fit, unles ne should fall back upon the neyed phrase of "nothing doing. Buying of bonds during the week has been small, though at each meeting of the exchange there has been more, or less call for them that could not be satisfied. So it has been in a measure with stocks. It has been next to impossible to get them at prevailing prices, and brokers who have shown any inclination to purchase have made an effort to beat down the price before taking them on.

There is no reason in the nature of things for such a condition. Money is plentiful in the city banks, stocks are intrinsically low, and every wind is favorable to greater activity. There is simply the lack of buying power to stiffen the market, and it looks now as though this state of affairs might continue, at least during this week, if not longer.

The time is at hand when the brokers will be seeking their vacations, and it was stated by one of them yes terday that if things did not liven up this week he would get out of town to the Northern fishing grounds, where he could enjoy a little fun and let business take care of itself for a

Last year at this time the younger brokers of the exchange were form-ing their alleged pool to force up the price of Gas stock, and then and later the summer there was always some excitement when the regular call reached Washington Gas. But this year there is not even that diversion give an interest to the market, so hat at the moment it appears that here is nothing in sight but a dull market and slowly crumbling prices

Was Behind Lamar.

Young Rockefeller is now believed to e the man who stood behind David L. mar for months in the remarkable at-tucks on Delaware and Hudson stock. No confirmation of this can be had of-ficially, but circumstantial evidence supports the rumor which is generally be lieved in Wall Street. Reason for the attacks on Delaware and Hudson was that the company purchased at a remarkably cheap price a tract of anthra-cite coal land. The persons who sold this land believed at the time that they were getting the best of the company, but after the deal had been consummated discovered to their dismay that it was worth many times the purchase price.

Up to this date the receipts of the penditures have been $653,750,755.61, showing a deficit of $62,986,996.72.

This deficit will probably be reduced to about $60,000,000 by June 30, the close Since 'Ar. Rockefeller cleaned up the market on American Ice it has advanced to about $28 a share, and its market price now stands more than double what it originally cost him. Brokers who usually have information in regard to his movements say that he plans to put Ice to $30 this summer. This stock sold at 98 a little more than a year ago. Its highest price in 1907 was $8, and in the panic of Octozer it sold down to $36.

Incidentally, Mr. Rockefeller's campaign in Ice is expected to put Charles W. Morse on his feet again and to reward him for the heroic work none last October in assisting in the financial
